

BECCA SEAMAN

Digital Content Intern
IT Services

The recruitment process was fast and easy – there was always someone I could speak to, which was helpful when I had questions.

What made you apply for our placement programme?

I saw that NG Bailey has other successful early careers programmes for apprentices and graduates..

Why did you apply to NG Bailey?

The job description was precise and matched the route I wanted to go down in my career. Also, after researching the business further, the social and environmental values were a key aspect that encouraged me to apply.

How did you find the recruitment process?

The recruitment process was fast and easy – there was always someone I could speak to, which was helpful when I had questions.

What is the best thing about your placement?

Getting out and about. I've had a mix of different experiences so far. I was able to go on-site at Our Town Hall project in Manchester, and help film our apprentices working to upgrade this amazing city landmark. I also went down to London to visit one of our clients, where we had a tour of their facilities and discussed their future partnership with NG Bailey.

What has been the biggest challenge?

The biggest challenge has been working in a large business environment and learning about the different ways that people communicate.

What part of your role gives you the most personal satisfaction?

Seeing my own work or something I worked on be published or displayed for others to see.

What has been your greatest achievement so far during your time with us?

Taking the lead in coordinating multiple people from different business teams for a project. It was a learning curve but something I'm proud of undertaking and completing successfully. It's definitely given me more confidence.

What would your top tip be for anyone applying for a placement this year?

Be enthusiastic and proactive. For my interview, I created example posts for different social media channels to demonstrate my skills as a potential digital content intern.